- She simply bypassed all the public speaking stereotypes and shared her 'happening' with her audience in the natural way she would with family and friends - and they couldn't help but respond in kind.

- She discovered she certainly was no fake or fraud, nor did she have to live a whole life-time to have something to say! She'd already earned the right to talk about the fears and challenges a young person faces as they move forward in life - she was an expert on that!

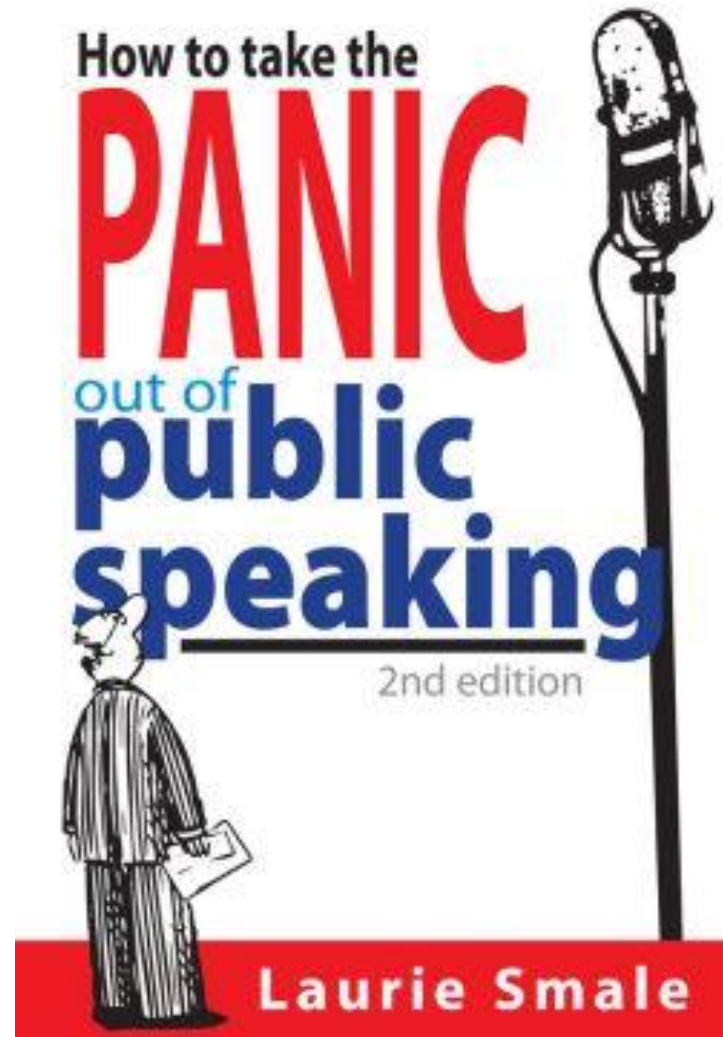

Don't dice with danger

Formula

1. Heading – Something catchy related to the story
2. Universal Statement – Have your listeners nodding in agreement
3. Relive happening from memory – Breathe life into your talk
4. Make a point – Make it memorable
